NEWS

ISSUE 03 | 2017

Dear Sir or Madam,

Hamburg is Germany's most international city: for centuries, local merchants have established business links all over the world. This has shaped our city and its inhabitants – Hamburg's openness to the world is something that visitors, businesspeople and patients from abroad will sense immediately. Our major international port is our gateway to the world, and water is also a central element in Hamburg's cityscape: the Alster Lake with its sailing boats in the heart of the city, the River Elbe with its huge container ships, and the new Hafencity all lend Hamburg a fascinating maritime flair. Hamburg combines tourist highlights with internationally renowned medical care. The top-class medical research carried out here gives rise to innovative and non-invasive treatment methods, particularly for young patients. One of Germany's most modern centres of paediatric medicine, the recently-completed paediatric clinic at University Medical Center Hamburg-Eppendorf will provide special care for children and young adults suffering from serious and rare conditions. The "Herzbrücke" project at Hamburg's Albertinen-Krankenhaus underlines Hamburg's commitment to international children's health. Whether you travel to Hamburg as a visitor or a patient, and whether you come with or without your family – we will give you a very warm welcome!

Yours,

Corinna Nienstedt

Interview with Prof. Dr. med. Friedrich-Christian Riess

Professor Riess is the chief heart surgeon at Albertinen Krankenhaus Hamburg and medical director of the “Herzbrücke” project. For more than ten years, he has been bringing children from Afghanistan to Hamburg for heart surgery. Being from poor families, the children would have no chance of survival in their own country.
